

THEY'RE NOT ROBOTS

First Jonathan Chait and now Spencer Ackerman have escaped Marty's grasp reached beyond their New Republic home to oppose Lieberman. Chait's contribution is a logical attack on Joe's justification for his run (if surprising, given the source).

What's the point of running to uphold Democratic hawkishness when you're running against the Democratic Party and its chosen nominee? Lieberman is fighting on terrain that, from the perspective of the liberal hawks, could not be less advantageous.

It has stopped being a battle for the soul of the Democratic Party and become a battle for Lieberman to keep his prestigious job. If the idea that he professes to value above all else are really his highest priority, he should drop out of the race.

While Ackerman expands on Chait's point to refute Joe's claim to be strong on defense.
