

ARI FLEISCHER TO PIMP BCS

There's much that can be said about this...

The college football Bowl Championship Series has hired Ari Fleischer, the former press secretary to President George W. Bush, to help improve its image.

[snip]

"Playoff advocates have had an easy ride where they have never been called on to explain exactly how they would create an alternative. There is tremendous division among playoff advocates," said Fleischer. "While the BCS has its share of critics, once people see both sides of the issue, they will see why the system has its great support."

And because a lot of folks are sliding into the Turkey holiday, I hereby give you an entire thread to say those things.
