

JIM WEBB: WE ARE ENDORISING ASSASSINATION OF LEADERS OF COUNTRIES WE RECOGNIZE

I'm watching the Senate Foreign Relation Committee's grilling of Harold Koh—either bmaaz or I will post on that later.

But Jim Webb just made a really important point. He noted that we have suspended, but not severed, our relations with Libya. After cornering Koh on that issue (and finally getting Koh to acknowledge that point), Webb then asked "What is the constitutional limitation on the assassination of a head of state?" Koh replied that the ban on assassinations is an Executive Order, not a law (a point I make all the time, given that it means the ban can be pixie dusted at will by Presidents).

Webb then said that Nobody up here wants Qaddafi to remain. But moral standard we set is one we should expect.

In other words, Webb notes, if we actively work to assassinate the leader of a country we recognize, we are implicitly endorsing such actions against us.

Silly Webb doesn't get yet that the US operates under one giant double standard, I guess.
