

ORLANDO PULSE OPEN THREAD

I've been out for hours as the news from Orlando came in. There's not much to say (as always, it always pays to withhold instantaneous conclusions), besides expressing profound grief both about yet another senseless mass killing but about this mass killing, targeting gay men and women celebrating Pride.

There is so much we need to fix in this country: the guns, the homophobia. But I fear we're most likely to just throw more policing in the mix, rather than addressing the underlying issues.

I'm sorry.

Fixed Miami/Orlando: confused because of prior coverage.
