

KAVANAUGH HEARING: THE AFTERMATH

[NB: CHECK THE BYLINE.]

It was a disaster, no matter how Republicans spin it. As after a disaster, damage continues.

Brett Kavanaugh was an aggressive and belligerent drunk according to a former Yale roommate. His incredibly rude behavior before the Senate yesterday proved his belligerence didn't require alcohol. Yelling at seated senators, talking over the women who asked him questions – he did not demonstrate either respect for their office as the representatives of the people, nor did he display appropriate judicial temperament.

He also lied several times. Call it prevarication, untruthiness, fib, whatever label makes you feel more comfortable but what came out of his mouth did not match facts.

The SJC's GOP faction knew he was at extreme risk, particularly so when their hired girl reverted to a prosecutor's role and asked Kavanaugh about his calendar. It was at this point that Mitchell was 'disappeared' and Lindsey Graham flipped his wig, stepping up to put on an act worthy of an Academy Award for a supporting actor. So very Shakespearean in his castigation; woe, woe betide those who dared to ignore the wholly arbitrary deadline the GOP forced on this train wreck confirmation.

Poppycock and nonsense. We haven't forgotten Merrick Garland and the unacceptable theft of his place on the Supreme Court.

Lest anyone claim Graham wasn't acting: he was seen laughing in the hallway after the hearing, yucking it up with a couple other GOP senators. His cadre welcomed him later with applause as he entered a closed door meeting.

EDIT – I'd thought of this Carl Sandburg quote yesterday during Graham's 'performance', meant to include it here:

"If the facts are against you, argue the law. If the law is against you, argue the facts. If the law and the facts are against you, pound the table and yell like hell."

Nice drama, babe. You've got a second career waiting for you after you leave office – hopefully sooner than later.

The Jesuit magazine which had endorsed Kavanaugh saw through the acts; they revoked their endorsement last night, saying they "recognize that this nomination is no longer in the best interests of the country."

The American Bar Association expressed its concerns about Kavanaugh's confirmation and asked the confirmation to be delayed until after a more thorough investigation.

Somebody else is worried about the confirmation, enough that they dispatched George W. Bush to lean on fencesitting GOP holdouts.

Imagine how bad it is that Bush must get engaged in this mess to cover for Trump's inadequacies as a negotiator, though we shouldn't overlook the possibility Bush has skin in the game if any cases come before the Supreme Court in which he is a defendant.

And Alan Dershowitz called for a delay to allow for an FBI investigation. Yeah, it was that bad.

In minutes the Senate Judiciary Committee will meet and then we'll know whether this farcical nomination will continue on to the full Senate.

EDIT – 10:19 AM – AP News reports Senate Judiciary Committee will vote at 1:30 pm today on forwarding Kavanaugh's nomination to the full senate.

Be sure to check out Marcy's more detailed analysis of yesterday's hearing. This is an open thread.

*If you haven't called your senators, do so.
Congressional switchboard: (202) 224-3121.*