

WHIP IT GOOD: IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY EDITION [UPDATED-7]

[NB: Check the byline, thanks! Updates at the very bottom. /~Rayne]

CNN published a report this weekend tallying the House Democrats who have already expressed support in one way or another for an impeachment inquiry. The head count stood at 63 out of 235 Democrats on Saturday, along with lone Republican Justin Amash (R-MI).

There are many possible reasons why House Democrats haven't yet expressed support for a Constitutionally empowered inquiry, not the least of which is simple chickenshit worry about polling for the 2020 race. I say chickenshit because 2018 was a huge wave and the reasons which drove that wave have not subsided. They have only increased in intensity.

Can you think of anyone in your circle of friends and family whose taxes have gone down since the Trump tax bill passed? Can you think of anyone who's found their grocery bill or their rent has gone down? What about medical bills – has anyone you know experienced a drop in prescription drug costs or health care insurance premiums?

And what of other matters like personal privacy or the ability to vote? Have those matters improved for the average Americans you know?

Now we can add more rural Americans to the discontented having been ignored while their states have been inundated, just as coastal residents in hurricane-damaged states have also gone without timely attention and aid.

The blue wave will continue. Its power needs to be focused. We have some time to address that. But we also need to develop that focus with more effective investigations into the Trump administration's public corruption and abuses of power as well as obstruction of justice and oversight. An impeachment inquiry will provide the teeth necessary to obtain evidence and testimony, and it's well past time to get the House Dems on board.

Here's the whip list below – I will update it as I see reports in the media.

Your job as a citizen is to exercise your civic duty and contact your representative to find out where they stand on an impeachment inquiry, and to convey your opinion supporting one.

Do share your results in comments; we'll watch to see how long it takes for the media to catch up with any changes in this whip count.

Let's roll, people. Congressional switchboard:

Side note: Have you ever noticed how many members of Congress are Juniors or II/III/IV in their family?

None will be women.

UPDATED – 12:00 a.m. 18-JUN-2019 –

Rep. Katie Porter from CA-45, a moderately conservative district including Orange County, threw her support behind an impeachment inquiry.

I saw a mention of 67 Dems now supporting an inquiry but I only have 64. If you know of any other House members who have now said they support an impeachment inquiry, please let me know. Thanks.

UPDATED – 5:00 p.m. 19-JUN-2019 –

Thanks to community member harpie who shared a link to NBC's latest whip count which showed 66 House Dems and 1 House GOP member supporting an impeachment inquiry. NBC's list deviated from CNN's in that NBC did not include Brenda Lulenar Lawrence (D-MI) and Sheila Jackson Lee (D-TX). Newly added supporters are in boldface.

[1] NBC also showed Harley Rouda as a Yes in a previous iteration but has now offered a correction:

CORRECTION (May 30, 2019, 1:25 p.m. ET):
An earlier version of this article misstated the position of Rep. Harley Rouda, D-Calif., on beginning an impeachment inquiry against President Donald Trump. Rouda has said he supports an impeachment inquiry only if Trump does not comply with congressional subpoenas, not before.

Nice fence sitting, Rouda, hope your pants are adequately padded. Does this include obstruction by staff/ex-staff who refuse to comply with subpoenas or no? Anybody in Rouda's district want to call and find out which side of the fence Rouda is on today after Hope Hicks refusal to cooperate with the House?

UPDATED – 5:00 p.m. 19-JUN-2019 –

Adding Brian Higgins (D-NY) as a Yes:

Obstruction of justice is an impeachable offense. The multiple instances laid out in the Mueller report necessitate that the House launch an impeachment inquiry.

– Brian Higgins (@RepBrianHiggins) June 19, 2019

UPDATED – 7:30 p.m. 20-JUN-2019 –

Community member harpie shares these latest additions to the Yes column:

Rep. Jan Schakowsky (D-IL)

Rep. Tony Cardenas (D-CA)

Rep. Nydia Velazquez (D-NY)

And community member P.J. Evans shares this link reporting Rep. Sean Casten (D-IL) has also joined the Yes chorus.

Productive day on the Yes front. Wonder how much was because of Hope Hicks' and White House intransigent responses to questioning. House GOP caucus is still fully behind the scofflaw-in-chief, save for Justin Amash (D-MI).

UPDATED – 7:45 a.m. 21-JUN-2019 –

I've made a change to the spreadsheet to indicate which members of the House Judiciary Dems support an impeachment inquiry. 13 out of 24 members currently do – that's critical mass. Chair Jerry Nadler is a likely supporter given his submission of a resolution last year for impeachment, but as chair he may be obligated to hold back until he has reached some threshold internal to the committee. Here's the breakdown:

House Judiciary Committee Democrats	☐ = For Inquiry
Cedric Richmond, Louisiana	☐
David Cicilline, Rhode Island	☐
Eric Swalwell, California	☐
Greg Stanton, Arizona	☐
Jamie Raskin, Maryland	☐
Joe Neguse, Colorado	☐
Madeleine Dean, Pennsylvania	☐
Mary Gay Scanlon, Pennsylvania, Vice Chair	☐
Pramila Jayapal, Washington	☐
Steve Cohen, Tennessee	☐
Ted Lieu, California	☐
Val Demings, Florida	☐
Veronica Escobar, Texas	☐
Debbie Mucarsel-Powell, Florida	☐
Hakeem Jeffries, New York
Hank Johnson, Georgia
Jerrold Nadler, New York, Chairman
Karen Bass, California
Lou Correa, California

Lucy McBath, Georgia
Sheila Jackson Lee, Texas
Sylvia Garcia, Texas
Ted Deutch, Florida
Zoe Lofgren, California

If your representative is one of the House Judiciary Committee Dems who have not yet thrown their support behind an impeachment inquiry, your calls matter the most right now. With all HJC Dems on board, Nadler has the political will power aligned to begin pursuit of an inquiry.

UPDATED – 1:30 p.m. 21-JUN-2019 –

Add another Yes on the board supporting impeachment inquiry:

INBOX: @LacyClayM01 is cosponsoring resolution to impeach President Trump (<https://t.co/xdG32vABSm>) – and another resolution to launch an impeachment inquiry (<https://t.co/M1TSE6J4n4>): pic.twitter.com/KlZHyBt69b

– Jason Rosenbaum (@jrosenbaum) June 21, 2019

UPDATED – 5:50 p.m. 21-JUN-2019 –

Two more House Dems now support an impeachment inquiry – one of them is a House Judiciary member, too. That's 14 of 24 or 58% of the committee now behind an inquiry.

Rep. Debbie Mucarsel-Powell (D-FL):

And Rep. Adam Smith (D-WA) changed his position.

If you call your representative, please share the results of your call in comments. Thanks. If comments close here soon because the post gets knocked down by other content, I will put up a new Whip It post.
