

DEMOCRATS' 2020 PRIMARIES: SUPER TUESDAY RESULTS [UPDATE-4]

This post is dedicated to the Democratic Party's Super Tuesday results. Not much sense bothering with the Republican Party's results since GOP canceled a number of primaries.

Post will be updated as results come in.

Results about 9:40 p.m. ET:

State	Percent Reported	Results	Delegates
Alabama	16% reporting	Joe Biden won	52 delegates available
American Samoa	TBD	Michael Bloomberg won
Arkansas	13% reporting	Joe Biden leads	31 delegates available
California	Results expected around 11:00 PM EST
Colorado	25% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	66 delegates available
Maine	32% reporting		24 delegates available
Massachusetts	29% reporting		91 delegates available
Minnesota	20% reporting	Joe Biden leads	75 delegates available

North Carolina	55% reporting	Joe Biden won	110 delegates available
Oklahoma	83% reporting	Joe Biden won	37 delegates available
Tennessee	69% reporting	Joe Biden won	64 delegates available
Texas	7% reporting	Bernie Sanders leads	228 delegates available
Utah	Results expected around 10:05 PM EST
Vermont	69% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	16 delegates available
Virginia	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	99 delegates available

Rather expensive hobby for Bloomberg, to have spent nearly half a billion to win only American Samoa. I still need to find the delegate count for the territory. At least Tulsi Gabbard didn't win Samoa.

Of note: Donna Brazile's appearance on Fox News today. I've enjoyed watching the video at this link several times.

Former DNC chair Donna Brazile tells @GOPChairwoman to "Go to hell."
pic.twitter.com/S2SZh2Y5QE

– Daily Caller (@DailyCaller) March 3, 2020

UPDATE-1 – 10:30 P.M. ET –

Results about 10:20 p.m. ET:

State	Percent Reported	Results	Delegates
-------	------------------	---------	-----------

Alabama	39% reporting	Joe Biden won	52 delegates available
American Samoa	Caucus held (not a primary).	Michael Bloomberg won	4 delegates to Bloomberg 1 delegate to Gabbard, 1 delegate TBD
Arkansas	37% reporting	Joe Biden won	31 delegates available
California	Results expected around 11:00 PM EST
Colorado	36% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	66 delegates available
Maine	50% reporting		24 delegates available
Massachusetts	46% reporting		91 delegates available
Minnesota	40% reporting	Joe Biden won	75 delegates available
North Carolina	59% reporting	Joe Biden won	110 delegates available
Oklahoma	93% reporting	Joe Biden won	37 delegates available
Tennessee	82% reporting	Joe Biden won	64 delegates available
Texas	17% reporting	Bernie Sanders leads	228 delegates available
Utah	33% reporting

Vermont	88% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	16 delegates available
Virginia	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	99 delegates available

Wondering how much last night's tornado affected turn out in Nashville, Tennessee.

Texas has considerable problems with voting which look like typical voter suppression techniques.

UPDATE-2 – 11:10 P.M. ET –

Results approx. 11:00 p.m. ET:

State	Percent Reported	Results	Delegates
Alabama	68% reporting	Joe Biden won	52 delegates available
American Samoa	Caucus held (not a primary).	Michael Bloomberg won	4 delegates to Bloomberg 1 delegate to Gabbard, 1 delegate TBD
Arkansas	71% reporting	Joe Biden won	31 delegates available
California	Results expected around 11:00 PM EST
Colorado	46% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	66 delegates available
Maine	58% reporting		24 delegates available
Massachusetts	65% reporting	Joe Biden won	91 delegates available

Minnesota	68% reporting	Joe Biden won	75 delegates available
North Carolina	84% reporting	Joe Biden won	110 delegates available
Oklahoma	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	37 delegates available
Tennessee	88% reporting	Joe Biden won	64 delegates available
Texas	17% reporting	Bernie Sanders leads	228 delegates available
Utah	49% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	29 delegates available
Vermont	94% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	16 delegates available
Virginia	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	99 delegates available

These conditions are absolutely unacceptable in a modern democracy – do open the image link. This is at Texas Southern University.

The line at 9:25 p.m., still maybe an hour from being inside the polling place. pic.twitter.com/vR2egaixbD

– Allyn West (@allynwest) March 4, 2020

The Democratic Party candidates and presumptive nominee MUST make this an issue in the media and embarrass the fuck out of Texas' GOP-led government, but do so in a way to encourage November voter turn out.

UPDATE-3 – 12:10 A.M. ET –

Results approx. 12:00 a.m.:

State	Percent Reported	Results	Delegates
-------	------------------	---------	-----------

Alabama	87% reporting	Joe Biden won	52 delegates available
American Samoa	Caucus held (not a primary).	Michael Bloomberg won	4 delegates to Bloomberg 1 delegate to Gabbard, 1 delegate TBD
Arkansas	86% reporting	Joe Biden won	31 delegates available
California	9% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	415 delegates available
Colorado	58% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	66 delegates available
Maine	66% reporting		24 delegates available
Massachusetts	80% reporting	Joe Biden won	91 delegates available
Minnesota	90% reporting	Joe Biden won	75 delegates available
North Carolina	99% reporting	Joe Biden won	110 delegates available
Oklahoma	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	37 delegates available
Tennessee	98% reporting	Joe Biden won	64 delegates available
Texas	52% reporting	Bernie Sanders leads	228 delegates available
Utah	67% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	29 delegates available

Vermont	98% reporting	Bernie Sanders won	16 delegates available
Virginia	100% reporting	Joe Biden won	99 delegates available

Report in Los Angeles Times discusses introduction of a new voting system and resulting delays. Sorry I can't tell you more, LAT site won't open for me at the moment. Check in with LAT's Matt Pearce instead:

A storyline to watch out of L.A. County tonight, which is more populous than most states: A brand-new voting system has also come with long lines and waits of at least two hours in some polling stations. <https://t.co/vy9pGry5V0>

– Matt Pearce @mattdpearce March 4, 2020

LAT called the state for Sanders though vote tallies will be a looong time trickling in with some people still voting in Los Angeles area. Silicon Valley went for Sanders, wine country on the north side of the bay went to Bloomberg. Wondering if Livermore National Labs' ecosystem went to Biden?

Adder: LAT didn't do voters any favors. AP definitely didn't do any favors, and we need to address the AP in particular since they are funded by newspapers and TV stations across the country. Who's pushing AP to be first to detriment of democratic process?

Also: calling states early made people leave lines early in California and Texas where lines were very long, especially on college campuses and in communities of color. Y'all should be ashamed of yourselves.

– Aura Bogado @aurabogado March 4, 2020

UPDATE-4 – 12:45 A.M. ET –

Last update for me, I need to hit the hay.
Maine's at 72% and will likely be a while yet.
California is now at 12% reporting.

My two cents: A substantive number of Super Tuesday's Democratic voters went with the "safe" candidate, the one who they believe will restore a sense of normalcy and stability to the White House.

They want to reprise the comfort of the Barack and Joe Show, even if Barack won't be on stage for this spin-off, even if Joe is nowhere near as on top of his game as he was in 2008.

What's telling is this bit about Minnesota:

ABC: Joe Biden is on pace to win Minnesota despite **no staff on the ground** while Sanders had staff and several events while Bloomberg spend $13 million on ads in the state.

– Derek Thompson (@DKThomp) March 4, 2020

I don't think Klobuchar's endorsement alone could overcome a deficit of campaign apparatus. Minnesota's change to a primary from caucus since 2016 also doesn't explain this.