

TURNING TIDES

I gotta say, this post yesterday from Josh Marshall,

As regular readers of this site know, I've always been against the movement to impeach President Bush. I take this position not because he hasn't done plenty to merit it. My reasons are practical. Minor reasons are that it's late in the president's term and that I think impeachment itself is toxic to our political system – though it can be less toxic than the high officials thrown