

TWO YEARS TO INDICT TAN NGUYEN

Remember Tan Nguyen? He's the asshole who, in his race against Loretta Sanchez in 2006, sent out fliers in Spanish to recently registered voters warning that immigrants could be imprisoned if they voted.

He was indicted on October 1 on one charge of obstruction. Two years after he tried to dissuade Latinos from voting.

Now, I'm thrilled he's been indicted.

DICK'S BIG STICK AND THE DEMOCRATIC ALPHA MALE

In his rush to find a problem with the manly men Democrats have been electing of late, Ryan Lizza seems to have forgotten a number of long-serving Congressmen.

What's the point of running to uphold Democratchawkishness when you're running against the Democratic Party and its chosen nominee?

NEOCON JOE, THE FAILED LEBANESE CAMPAIGN, AND LOSING BY WINNING

This is going to be a bit of a wandering post. But I'm going to cover the following and hopefully finish in enough time to go can peaches: Taking Joe at his word Hersh's portrayal of failure On how the Neocons may become winners out of losing

Taking Joe at His Word

Mark Schmitt asked the other day,

Can someone explain what Senator Lieberman could possibly mean when he says the following:

“I’m worried that too many people,

WHAT WOULD JOE DO FOR $17,000?

Scout Prime has a really superb post up on this WaPo article, which in turn talks about the big contractors that failed miserably in their Katrina response, but which have just gotten new contracts for further hurricane response. From Scout Prime's post:

Companies that received 4 FEMA Katrina contracts "repeatedly faulted" by the DHS inspector general, congressional auditors and the Senate received 4 new FEMA contracts for future hurricane work.
