

EMPTYWHEEL TAKES A VACATION!

This is just a quick post to note that I'll be on vacation, with limited access to the Toobz, for the next two weeks. If something major hits, I may sneak back on and post, but I hope to instead spend quality time with my mom.

bmaz claims he's going to pick up some slack and I know Ed has some quality stuff planned. Hopefully, Rayne will continue to track some of the interesting hacking developments. And Jim's schedule may finally free up enough to resume posting next week.

In the meantime, here's to my mom, who is having a big birthday on Thursday, is a remarkable woman, and put up with me for many years and surely made me a better person along the way (imagine how awful I'd be without her influence?!?!).