Ralston's Deposition

June 18, 2007

/

emptywheel

Oh, this is getting good. As part of his interim report on RNC emails, Waxman released Susan Ralston's testimony before the committee. Reading the deposition, it becomes pretty clear why Tom Davis was trying to warn Rove of the danger of Ralston's testimony. Because even what she was willing to testify to makes it clear that Rove is in some deep legal trouble.

Shorter Abu Gonzales: Throw Libby in Jail for at Least 30 Months

emptywheel

I've been meaning to point out a little hypocrisy among the Republican faithful. You see, the Republicans are celebrating Alberto Gonzales' recent call to crack down on federal convicts. They want to reverse the SCOTUS decision that allows judges to treat sentencing guidelines as a suggestion, and return to the era of required minimum sentencing.

Throwing Another Admin Official in Jail for Obstruction

In spite of signing a plea agreement for the charge of obstructing a Senate investigation, Steve Griles is trying to get his already light 10 month sentence reduced to three months of home confinement and community service on two non-profits Griles set up himself (in a scandal, of course, in which non-profits have routinely been used to launder money).

The Foreign Lobby Industry

emptywheel

Back when the Mearsheimer and Walt paper on AIPAC came out, I expressed my hope that they--or somebody--would catalog the way the foreign influence lobby works. I'm disappointed, too, because I had hoped Mearsheimer and Walt would provide a sophisticated review of the way foreign lobbies influence our government. I made this point recently in response to the conflation of Bush's NSA-related attacks on journalists and the government's pursuit of leaks to journalists in the Franklin

Bill Moyers Says It Beautifully

June 15, 2007

emptywheel

When I grow up I aspire to write as well as Bill Moyers: We have yet another remarkable revelation of the mindset of Washington's ruling clique of neoconservative elites—the people who took us to war from the safety of their Beltway bunkers. Even as Iraq grows bloodier by the day, their passion of the week is to keep one of their own from going to jail. It is well known that I.

Shorter Schloz and the IG

emptywheel

I'd like to point out something about TPMM's story on the two complaints (and do read the complaints--they're infuriating) submitted to DOJ's IG on Brad Schlozman. It's unclear if the Department's inspector general ever pursued the allegations from the December, 2005 letter at the time. But the office certainly is now. In a letter to the judiciary committee chairmen last month, Glenn Fine and Office of Professional Responsibility counsel Marshall Jarrett announced that their joint probe
